Use of chelation to bind iron and reduce oxidative damage to wines is all well and good, but sulfur dioxide is used for more than oxidation control.

The property of microbial inhibition by the "molecular" SO₂ level and subsequent wine preservation would be compromised.

With the non-sterile nature of wine production the removal of SO₂ from the process would increase the microbial risk of spoilage in bottled wines substantially.

I would caution against too much celebration of wine oxidative damage being solved by chelation.
